TWO PARKERSBURG TRAGEDIES

Crowd Sees Man Take Poison—Wife Slain for Beating Son.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., September 8.—The pleasure of the throng of home-comers who have taken possession of Parkersburg was marred by two tragedies, a suicide and a murder, yesterday. Charles Adams, a young Pennsylvanian, out of work, in the afternoon drained a bottle of carbolic acid in the presence of a multitude that crowded the streets of the city. He fell writhing to the pavement, and was hurried to the nearest police station. Before a doctor could arrive, however, the young man had expired.

Last evening in a suburb of Parkersburg Mrs. Adams was also killed by her husband because she whipped her young son for disobedience. The lad is a stepson of Smith, who is married, then ran into the house, and securing a pistol, shot his wife dead. Regret is being expressed and the boy is held as a witness.

John Wesley Winkfield, seventy-seven years old, who established a large Winchester shoe factory at the close of the civil war, died Tuesday at Winchester, Va. He was a native of Punketown, Md.

BRIDE ISN'T INSANE

Jury Permits Continuing of Interrupted Honeymoon.

A JOYFUL SCENE IN COURT

Rushes to Arms of Bridegroom, Who Had Remained Loyal.

JEALOUSY CAUSED TROUBLE

Gossip of Friends Drove Mrs. Newlywed to Seek Forgetfulness in a Long, Black Bottle.

The interrupted honeymoon of Mary Sullivan Rainey and John Rainey, who were married August 10 and separated eight days later, was resumed today, when a jury in Justice Barnard's court declared ungrounded the charge that the woman was insane.

With a cry of delight the bride rushed into the waiting arms of her husband and the crowded courtroom was regaled with a love scene in reality.

Mrs. Rainey's troubles began August 18, when some friends told her stories reflecting on the fidelity of her bridegroom. John strenuously denied the stories, and thinking he had pacified his spouse, proceeded to his work.

Sought Consolation in Bottle.

Cankerous doubt kept up its work in Mary's mind, however, and to drown her sorrow she had recourse, according to the testimony at the hearing today, to the contents of a black bottle, and wandered forth upon the highway, where she gave vent to hilarity.

A guardian of the peace, happening along, took Mary in tow and had her taken to the Washington Hospital for observation as to her mental condition.

She was later transferred to the Government Hospital for the Insane and proceedings to inquire into her mental condition were instituted.

Witnesses at the hearing declared Mary had always been a sober, hardworking domestic prior to the Wagonman business, which occurred in 1904, when she lost all her money, the savings of a lifetime, invested with Wagonman, had been lost. She became a victim of melancholy. It was testified, and occasionally sought to drown her sorrow.

John Remained Faithful.

Faithful John decided that his bride was not insane, and retained Attorney Matthew E. O'Brien to secure her release from custody. Attorney O'Brien had no difficulty in persuading the jury to turn Mary loose, on the plea of the interrupted honeymoon won the hearts of the jurors, while the testimony convinced them that free from gossiping friends and the influence of John's restored confidence in John restored, could live happily and did not need further mental treatment.

CAR INSPECTORS ELECT

RAILWAY MEN CLOSE THEIR ANNUAL SESSION.

Members Much Pleased With What They Have Seen in Washington. Ten-Day Session Proposed.

The Chief Joint Car Inspectors and Car Foremen's Association of America closed its annual session with this morning's meeting at the Arlington Hotel and the election of officers for the ensuing year. The officers chosen are: Henry Bouter of Cincinnati, president (re-elected); F. W. Trappell of Kansas City, vice president (re-elected); Stephen Skidmore of Cincinnati, secretary and treasurer (re-elected); T. J. O'Donnell of Buffalo, N. Y., secretary of the executive committee; F. C. Schultz of Chicago, William McManis, New York; J. L. Stark, Columbus, and A. Berg of Erie, Pa., executive committee.

Organized in 1897.

Charles Waughon, chief interchange inspector of St. Louis, was elected president in the organization, and Henry Bouter, its president, organized the association in 1897 with about a dozen members. Today there are enrolled about two hundred and fifty. The membership is composed exclusively of chief interchange inspectors and foremen of car departments of the steam railways of the country, and includes representatives of railway supply companies as social members. Mr. Waughon, well known in the association from 1897 to 1904, and wears a beautiful gold badge testifying to that fact. There were one hundred and thirty-five members present. The selection of the next place for the annual meeting is left to the executive committee, but it will likely be either Montreal or Minneapolis.

Following adjournment today the members visited the White House and other public buildings.

Pleased With Observations.

The members were of one mind in dwelling upon the attractions of Washington and improved every moment of their time in sightseeing. One member from the southwest declared that although he had been to Washington more than twenty times in his life, yet each time he noted splendid improvements, befitting the capital of a great nation.

"We have you beaten in the matter of fine beef, but you give in exchange so much delicious and satisfying a food that it is worth a few more miles to remain for some time when he visits you. In fact, I know that some of the members eat so many crabs and so much fish that beef will surely taste strange when they get back to their accustomed food."

Routine business occupied the attention of the car men yesterday. In the afternoon some of the members visited Mount Vernon and others inspected the Corcoran Gallery of Art. Later a sightseeing trip was made to the city of the future. A large party took the river trip to Indian Head on the steamer St. Johns.

The day was a very pleasant one so delightful that one member proposed to continue the session for ten days, but the delegates were so tired that they down the proposition because there was not enough business before the association to warrant it.

ATTACKED BY COPPERHEADS.

Young Man Weeding Garden Bitten by Two Venomous Snakes.

WILKESBARRE, September 8.—Adam Vaughan, a young man living at Paik, near here, was bitten Friday night by two large copperhead snakes at the same time, and, after being for many hours in danger of death, he is believed to have passed the danger point.

He was picking weeds in his garden when the snakes sprang at him at the same moment and sunk their fangs in his right hand.

So deep was the bite that he could not shake them off, and he had to tear them from his hand. Neighbors saved him by whisking him to a hospital, where the physicians arrived, and they managed to retard the spread of the poison through his system. He was soon unconscious, his arm swelled quickly and until noon yesterday it was not known whether he would live or die.

BOYS HAD FINE TIME
AT LONG POINT CAMP
Young Choir Singers of St. John's Church Enjoy Their Annual Vacation.

"Long Point is the boss place for a picnic."

That is the unanimous verdict of the bright and attractive little chaps who constitute the juvenile portion of the choir of St. John's Episcopal Church in Georgetown. Every summer the boys are taken by the organist of the church to Long Point, on Round bay, which is an arm of the Severn river, about eight miles above Annapolis. It is an event which is looked forward to with no small degree of pleasure by both the boys and the congregation and friends of the church.

In June of every year a concert is prepared and given by the choir under the direction of G. Thompson Williams, the organist of the church, who is now serving his third year in the capacity. Notwithstanding it is given in the Sunday school room, where the accommodations are limited as compared with halls where such entertainments are usually given, the net proceeds are always ample to meet all the expenses of the trip.

This year the choir, twelve, made up the camping party. Long Point is an ideal place for an outing. It sticks out into the bay like a good thumb, is covered with a fine clean stretch of timber, affording good shade and shelter from storms. Nestled in the woods, yet having a view of water on all sides, the point seems specially designed by nature for a camping ground. It is fully two miles on either side to the mainland, and in the distance are the blue waters of the picturesque Severn. The land is owned by a resident of Annapolis, and improved with a neat and commodious bungalow, outbuildings and a small wharf and boathouse.

Was a Jolly Crew.

The jolly party of lads, with a cook and camp kit, left Washington over the electric line to Annapolis, from which place they were conveyed in a launch to the camp grounds. Their ages ranged from nine to fifteen, and Mr. Williams declared that you could not find a better behaved lot of boys in a day's journey. The outing covered ten days and every one of them came back without a pain, ache or mishap.

Mr. Williams gave them all the latitude possible for enjoying themselves. They were allowed to go in bathing three times a day, and it filled the bill exactly. It was never necessary to send a messenger to rout any one out for a bath before breakfast, and such a thing as a dinner bell would have provoked a laugh.

It was a jolly lot of boys and a right royal time they had in the woodland as well as on the water. The boys were not only well behaved, but they were also very helpful in the service of their daily mail and supply boats from Annapolis. A flag flying from the wharf is a signal to the boatman to stop. All along the beautiful and picturesque Severn river are the summer homes of Annapolis and Baltimore people, and for miles on either side they range from the cozy vine-clad cottage to the more pretentious bungalow and colonial homestead. The boat ride itself is one well worth the journey.

The money cost and effort necessary to embark upon such an undertaking is of such little consequence," said Mr. Williams, "that the wonder why it is necessary to do not plan for such an outing. Indeed, the secret of St. John's success with its choir and the loyalty of its little folks is the interest the congregation and grown-ups take in the welfare of its young proteges. It is the safety of state that no better plan could be evolved to give any organization of young people the pleasure of an outing than to have them figure in their own benefit, and to let
